Bishop Desmond Tutu says President Reagan is "out of step" with Americans on the issue of sanctions against South Africa because there is strong support in the United States for such measures.

CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENTS

Churches are urged to send their services and program announcements, typewritten, to the Las Vegas Sentinel-Voice Church Reporter, Mary Wilson, at 1201 South Eastern Avenue, Las Vegas, NV 89104. Articles must be mailed or delivered to the above location no later than Monday noon of each week.

winner told reporters while the United States and Britain rejected sanctions as ineffective, demands for action are growing among Americans.

"I'm not particularly interested in what President Reagan does say," Tutu said. "I think that in this matter he's out of step with the rest of America."

Tutu was in Toronto for an anti-apartheid festival organized by arts, labor and business groups and was to address what organizers said would be a mass rally today on the grounds of the Ontario Legislature.

Reagan ordered limited sanctions last September to try to thwart tougher Congressional measures. But Tutu cited legislation introduced in Congress this month that would toughen measures by barring new U.S. business investment and bank loans to private companies in South Africa.

Tutu spoke to a special session of the Legislature, telling politicians and guests, including singer Harry Belafonte, that violence and oppression caused by apartheid could promote communism in South Africa.

"If you are looking for the best recruiters of communism then it be the South African government," said Tutu, the third non-Canadian ever to address the Legislature.

At a news conference, he expanded saying oppressed people will accept help in any form.
