The Clark County Health District is proud to announce that Harry Flemming, Chef at the New Town Tavern, 600 W. Jackson Street, is the first black chef to complete the Foodservice Sanitation Management Course and receive his Management Certification Certificate. This course is offered at the District to qualified individuals and is certified by the National Institution for the Foodservice Industry. Jesse Wilson, Sanitarian II for the Health District is the course instructor. Michael Minggia, Asst. Exec. Steward at Caesars Palace also completed the course.
