Anheuser-Busch Inc. Fetes NNPA At Gala Convention Affair

ST. LOUIS

In a gesture of thanks and appreciation for all of their important work, Anheuser-Busch, Inc., saluted the National Newspaper Publishers Association at a gala VIP presidential dinner held at historic Grant's Farm wildlife preserve during the annual NNPA convention recently.

The event honored publishers, families and staffs from more than 150 black owned newspapers across the country as they attended the convention. In total, more than 350 guests and corporate dignitaries were present, officials said.

Guests toured Grant's Farm, established by former U.S. President Ulysses Grant, and they were treated to a lavish reception and dinner after observing the collection of exotic birds and animals.

Entertainment was provided by a host of St. Louis area performers, including jazz singer Gene Lynn and the "Tres Bein" quartet; gospel singer Zella Jackson; the Persona Players drama troupe; magician Carl Grice and singer Marty Abdulah.

A highlight of the program was presentation of a $10,000 check by Anheuser-

Busch Companies, Inc., to the NNPA to develop a special scholarship fund on behalf of the organization.

In saluting the NNPA, Henry H. Brown, vice-president, marketing and development, Anheuser-Busch, Inc., thanked the publishers for their continued service over the years.

"The Black Press has served our country as an influential and authoritative pillar for the progress and development of improved social and economic conditions," said Brown.

"We at Anheuser-Busch, Inc., are particularly proud of the long and distinguished relationship we have had in support of the National Newspaper Publishers Association. This is our way of saying thanks."

the Showboat.

Johnson, a 21-year-old college student, has scored knockouts in five of his past six wins.

Guy is part of the Dave Gorman stable that has produced three world champions: former world welterweight and current World Boxing Council super welterweight champ Donald Curry, former WBA junior welterweight champ GENE Hatcher and former WBA featherweight champ Steve Cruz.

Injuries have allowed Guy to fight only once in the past 14½ months. He stopped Uriel Martinez in the fourth round on July 28, 1987, but then injured his back while working in the service department of a new car dealership. Guy returned on Feb. 23 in Dallas and halted Robert Martinez in the third round, and then suffered an accident in which he chipped a bone in his knee and required surgery.

The undercard, assembled by matchmaker Mel Greb, matches undefeated super bantamweight Joe Rincones of Long Beach, Calif., against veteran Hector Diaz of Mexico in an eight-rounder, unbeaten Las Vegas middleweight Kevin Grantham against Otis Pimpleton of Las Vegas in a six-rounder; undefeated featherweight John Baldwin of Odessa, Texas, against Jerald McNeil of Houston in a four-rounder; and unbeaten welterweight Tony Robinson of Detroit in a six-rounder against an opponent to be selected.

Rincones has a record of 9-0 with eight knockouts and is in his toughest test to date against the more experienced Diaz, with a mark of 24-9 and 11 knockouts.

Grantham has a record of 6-0-1 with three knockouts and is coming off a win over Vince Wilkerson on Sept. 10 at the Showboat. Pimpleton has a record of 4-3-1 with one knockout.

Baldwin has a record of 2-0 with two knockouts while McNeil has a mark of 2-2.

Robinson, from the Kronk stable which includes four-time world champion Thomas Hearns, has a record of 1-0 with one knockout.
