

Readers Speak Their Minds

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: What kind of image does the show "Nasty Boys" project to America?

James Milton: Fast moving, drug dealing, gang activity town...This show hurts the black innocent young men of Las Vegas because they now become targets for police harrassment due to the old "we all look alike" syndrome.

Shelia Williams: The show does not project the correct image...It makes me feel like I'm in New York or Los Angeles. The program is not keeping up with the new Las Vegas and what this new society is all about.

Jose Travis: If I lived in another part of the country, I wouldn't consider moving here to live. It gives a negative image of how police go above the law. However, it is an entertaining show to watch.

Ronald Sageel: It gives a pretty fair assessment of the drug problem nationwide...However, it shows that the Las Vegas police are striving to do some positive things against the war on drugs. When I watch the show, it reassures me somebody is fighting the problem.

Iris Moore: The show gives America the view of only Blacks dealing in drugs and gangs in Las Vegas...Bet my word on it, this show is going to inflate the already tremendous ego that the police department has.

Locals Taken For Granted

by Nona Carroll

It is a sad state of affairs when the consumer's satisfaction is unimportant.

I attended three fund raisers in the month of February. The tickets were $13., $25., and $50., ample amounts to serve a good meal and still make revenue for the charity. On the contrary, the food was at its best mediocre.

It is an insult to one's intelligence to serve inferior meals and expect for people to patronize their establishment. It's as if they thumb their noses at local people. I suggest that the hotels get with it. The population of Las Vegas is growing by leaps and bounds, and a great percentage of their revenues will come from locals.

The first affair was sponsored by the National Bar Association, Las Vegas Chapter. It was their 4th Annual Scholarship "Dinner at Eight" Banquet, for which the 1989-90 theme "Toward Justice" had as its guest speaker Judge Veronica Simmons McBeth, Municipal Judge for Loas Angeles County, California. It was a gala affair which was well attended. The ladies were elegantly attired and beautiful, the gentlemen were resplendent and handsome. The dinner was inferior: chicken, veggies, rice and dessert. The chicken was dry and unflavorful, the dessert was unimaginative with a sweet, sweet raspberry sauce.

We were the guest of John Bailey, Esq., the son of Ann and Bob Bailey. Our table was a lively one. The following guests made the evening palatable: Cazine Little, John and Becky West, Martha Joedan and Al Johnson (visiting from Chicago, Ill.), Alecia and Rudy Thompson, Non and Arthur Carroll. This was the $50.00 banquet held at the Tropicana Hotel.

The second affair was sponsored by the St. Jude's Ladies Guild at the Sahara Space Center. The menu was chicken, veggies, rice and dessert for $13.00 (this was the best meal of the three). My guests and supporters were: Martha Jordan, Jacqueline Richardson, Jewel Hill, Thelma Houston, Nan Turner and Micki McMillan. It was a very pleasant afternoon. Fashions were from the Good Buy Store and a lively auction was a success.

The third affair was sponsored by the Friends of St. Jude. Fashions were furnished by Saks 5th Avenue. The afternoon was pleasant thanks again to the table guests: Millie Curtis and guest visiting from Chicago, Ill., Hermine Parker, Jean Smith, Jewel Hill, Jacque Richards, Jean Hollis, Martha Jordan, Micki McMillan, Anna Bailey and yours truly. The menu - a scoop of chicken salad, tuna salad and crab salad, served with fruit (the salads were bland and tasteless). The dessert was the same peach custard and sweet, sweet sauce as was served at the Bar Association - $50.00. Tickets were $25.00 per for the fashion show luncheon held at the Tropicana Hotel.

I will continue to support worthwhile causes, but I will not attend unless something is done about improving the food and service. I will merely mail a check and I hope others will do the same.

college students to reach out into the community service, and become engaged in a much needed community service, adult literacy. Students have been recruited from all academic disciplines for the program. Students participating in the program are those interested in being involved in a productive community service as well as learning a process that can be used in any career.

The basis of the STUDENT LITERACY CORPS is a three hour credit course titled Adult Education: A Clinical Approach (EDUC 245). Two parts form the course: fifteen hours of seminar and sixty hours of practicum. After students have completed the fifteen hours of practical/applied methods for working with adults in an instructional environment, they will then complete sixty hours of tutoring adult learners at various learning centers throughout the community.

The course is currently being offered at Clark County Community College and will be repeated again during both the Summer and Fall semesters. Anyone wanting more information about the program should call Phyllis Rich, course instructor at Clark County Community College, 643-6060, ext. 215.

Children and Taxes

Q. Are children required to file income tax returns?

A. Generally, a child who can be claimed as a dependent on another taxpayer's return must file an income tax return if (1) all of the child's earned income (such as wages) totals more than $3,100 (for 1989 returns) or (2) the child has any unearned income (such as interest or dividends) and his or her total income (earned and unearned) is more than $500. Parents may be able to elect to report a child's interest and dividends on Form 8814, "Parent's Election to Report Child's Interest and Dividends." IRS Publication 929, Tax Rules for Children and Dependents, contains more information and can be ordered by calling toll-free 1-800-424-3676.
