0.6 percentage points to 5.1 percent. Last year in Reno's jobless rate was 5.0 percent.

Eureka County's unemployment rate remains unchanged over the month at 1.3 percent, reflecting the lowest concentration of jobless in the state. While White Pine County holds the dubious distinction of having the highest number of unemployed at 8.4 percent, down 0.6 percentage points since June.

Statewide, retail and wholesale employers accounted for 300 more jobs since June totaling 130,000 jobs - 4,500 more jobs in the trades sector since the same time last year. The mining industry gained 200 jobs over the month bringing the industry to 14,900 jobs. The mining industry is still 300 jobs shy of the 15,200 jobs counted in July of last year.

During July the construction industry continued to show recovery with an additional 700 jobs tacked on to the industry's count since June. That brings total jobs in construction to 46,700. Employment Security analysts predict the fourth quarter of 1991 to bring even more jobs to the construction industry. The predicted trend is gauged by an increased number of construction permits currently being issued.

Transportation and public utilities jobs increased by 100 over the month bringing the industry to a total of 34,200 jobs in July. That total is significantly up over last year's 32,300 job count during the same time

READING, WRITING & REALITY

THE bad news is that 50% of pregnant teens drop out of school. In fact, an average of 1 million American students drop out each year.

The good news is Burger King Academy. In partnership with Cities in Schools, Inc., we're committed to keeping "at risk" students in school. Kids in trouble with the law. Abused children. Pregnant teens.

At each of the Burger King Academies throughout the country, students receive special instruction, as well as employment opportunities, counseling and social services.

The reality is that some kids just won't get an education without some special attention. Burger King Academy is facing that reality. And we're doing something about it.
