

NATIONAL ALLIANCE AGAINST RACIST & POLITICAL REPRESSION

BARKING DOGS AND NEW DISCOVERIES

By James S. Tate, Jr., M.D.

I have been told recently that people have been somewhat concerned about the fact that I have not bothered to respond to an item that has appeared in local newspapers, which were basically personal attacks with no basis in either fact or logic.

The reason is quite simple. As we always maintained in the Alliance, one does not go after the barking dog, one goes after the dog's master. One must move the dog in whatever manner is appropriate in order to reach its master. For once you have convinced its master that the barking dog is becoming very expensive, it is the dog's master that will cuff it over the head and quiet it down. For this reason, I have not wasted time debating the dog in public. It seems interesting, however, that the organization that has always maintained that it had no problem with disrespect and brutality toward the citizens of Las Vegas (Metro) now decides, with much fanfare and much media coverage, to turn over a new leaf — they are now going to be courteous, they are going to be less brutal, they are going to develop an attitude of respect for the citizens of this city.

Isn't that interesting? This group that, as it has been stated, has always denied that this is something that they have been doing. It seems to me that you don't fix something that's not broken. Therefore, if the Metropolitan Police Department is now saying that they are now going to be more humane, they must have been much less humane in the past or this is merely a ruse.

Is all of this media hype, merely an attempt to convince the people of Las Vegas that a civilian control board is not needed and so, there is no reason to vote for this item when it appears on the ballot in November? Is Metro cynical enough to attempt this kind of deception? YES, WITHOUT QUESTION.

Clearly, all this activity has just begun, after the announcement by the Alliance that the number of signatures needed to place the item on the ballot had been gathered.

Let's face it guys, this is your attempt at heading this issue off at the pass. Unfortunately it's not going to work. The people can see through the deception and the Control Board will become a reality.

What is needed now is that everyone keep their eyes on the prize.

NLV...THE WESTSIDE STORY

ANOTHER AFFAIR

By R.K. Brown

It seems our President has become the target of his own games in the last few weeks. Like most of us, I was aware of the Iran Contra affair sometime ago. It seemed to me however, that this conservative regime was a little "too" powerful to have this "modern watergate" blemish its drive to the White House.

Although it seems the subject has come up a little too late to truly effect his campaign, it does show all of America how hypocritical this president really is! While chastising the American populous about our lack of family values, he and his henchmen were pulling the second greatest act of national deception in modern history. It must be added that conservatives also were involved in the greatest act of blatant lying and criminal deception in modern history. That incident was Watergate, and it, along with the sabotaging of Carter's presidency, just exemplifies the lack of respect conservatives show for the American public.

Although our government was set up in a three branch system to insure a degree of checks and balances, it seems when conservatives gain power their first act is to ignore this system. Our forefathers knew that there would be these attempts to bypass the people, so they enacted this division of powers. It is too bad that these totalitarians and dictators continue to act just as the Kings of old. They are, in a sense, modern Caesars!

We are all familiar with this latest blatant act of covert totalitarianism. Many officials of the Reagan and Bush years have come forward in recent weeks acknowledging the fact that both presidents were fully aware of the scandal taking place in their administration. This position's greatest supporter is the decorated hero Oliver North!

could accomplish two crucial things — channel youthful energies into constructive paths, and provide badly-needed community services.

I'm amazed that conservative Administrations who laud volunteer activities and constantly propagandize about a thousand points of light haven't seized on the idea.

And it's surprising too, that liberals who are so articulate about the problems faced by our cities and our young people haven't fought for it either.

There are plenty of models for such a national effort.

The Peace Corps was a great success, matching idealism with skills. Many thousands of Americans of all ages worked in communities all over the world

The situation is quite clear. Government officials diverted Iranian arms sales profits (our arch enemies!), then took the money to support the Nicaraguan Contras. It also happens that Gen. Noriega was a leader in this movement, and the U.S. was "fully" aware that he was the drug overlord of Central America. It was established at the trial of Noriega in Florida, that U.S. spy agencies realized that they could also make a profit in this world wide drug distribution. At that point the "American Government" established the largest "drug cartel" on the globe!

As the Bank of Credit and Commerce International collapsed, it was discovered that this world-wide banking system used 69 countries to hold and launder money for drug traffickers, terrorists and the CIA! It just goes to show you, that when it comes to holding the White House, conservatives from Nixon to the present will stop at nothing...even if it means sabotage or assassination!

sters could perform.

They could maintain parts ... make home visits and assist the elderly with shopping and other tasks ... serve as school aides and after-school tutors ... work in drug rehabilitation centers ... rebuild and reconstruct deteriorating housing units .. and much more.

With the appropriate training, they could help rebuild the urban infrastructure and learn skilled trades at the same time.

THE RAY WILLIS REPORT
BY RAY E. WILLIS

RAPPIN' QUAYLE

First he misspelled the word "potato." Then he misspoke during a speech about family values when he referred negatively to the single mother in the TV sitcom Murphy Brown. Now he's done it again. He's back with a vengeance. This time the man in question, vice president Dan Quayle, is engaged in a full-scale attack on rap music. That's right. Quayle is "rapping" his heart out in opposition to rap.

It all started when he accused Time Warner, Inc. of publishing music that incited a man to allegedly shoot a Texas State Trooper who had pulled him over in a stolen car. The man was said to have been listening to rapper Tupac Amaru Shakur's "2pacalypse Now" album.

The alleged murderer was said to have been listening to a record that suggested killing cops was OK, according to Quayle. However, an attorney for Time Warner and Atlantic Records said the vice president was misinformed about the facts of this case, including the contents of the tape, and what actually happened.

Suffice it to say that Quayle has gotten himself quagmired knee deep in yet another self induced controversy. Which prompted me to pen my first rap song. So here's my very own imaginary first-person narrative of a rap by none other than the undoubtable Dan Quayle!

*"They call me Dan Quayle because I'm so pale,
I earned my rep trying to be hep
I'm so "bad" that I can't even spell
But I can sure as hell tell potato from po-tah-to
With the rhythm of staccato
I can deliver a "bad" obbligato
Looking out for Bush
Me the V.P.
But if we don't win again
We're gonna sho' 'nuff be
Out by November's end
Quicker than a chile pimp
I ain't no wimp
Cause I'm Dan Quayle Deffer than a rusty nail."*

To that I say, rap on, rap on, brotherman Quayle. We never doubted you. We knew you were destined to forever be — super bad!

To know is to grow. Until next week.
