

PHYSICAL THERAPY ASST. PROGRAM IS ACCREDITED

The Physical Therapy Assistant education program at the Community College of Southern Nevada was recently accredited by the Commission on Accreditation in Physical Therapy Education.

The accreditation program service helps assure the public that individuals entering the profession are receiving a quality education which will prepare them to give safe, highly effective patient care. It also serves to foster excellence in physical therapy care.

The CCSN currently offers a two-year Associate of Applied Science degree in Physical Therapy Assisting which trains students to assist in the administration and regulation of physical therapy at hospitals and clinics.

Students interested in finding out more about the physical therapy program at the CCSN are encouraged to call the Science and Health Division at (702) 877-1133, extension 481.

BANK OF AMERICA

Supermarket opening soon in the area, will hopefully lead to more growth in West Las Vegas, according to City Councilman Frank Hawkins.

Hawkins lead the charge to have a bank open a branch in the economically disadvantaged area devastated during the April 30 unrest following the Rodney King verdict in Simi Valley, California.

Also on hand for the festivities, Mayor Jan Jones expressed to those in attendance that the construction of the bank marks a big first step in the revitalization of West Las Vegas, adding the bank will also be important to residents, as well as entrepreneurs, as it will become a means of obtaining capital.

"Bank of America has always had a strong commitment to community reinvestment," stated Etter during the ceremony.

"Since the civil disorder last spring, there is even a greater need to help both the West Las Vegas community and its residents."

Christine Worrell, senior community development officer (Bank of America, Pg 21)

BECAUSE A MIND GROWS BEST WHEN PARENTS AND TEACHERS JOIN TOGETHER.

Education needs an atmosphere of involvement. Not only at school, but also at home. Because when one reinforces the other, a child has the best chance to learn.

That's why at Kraft General Foods, we're proud to support programs that bring parents and teachers together. So they can exchange ideas about the needs of each child. Address problems before they become crises. And keep young minds open, active and growing.

Because our children will grow best when we all join together.
