"TRIALS OF THE INNOCENT"

By James S. Tate, Jr., M.D.,
Chairperson, N.A.A.R.P.R.

As I sit here writing this article, I have just returned from a very "exciting" adventure. An Easter egg hunt and Easter party for a group of youngsters ranging in age from 3 years old to 10 years old. Now, normally that would not inspire someone to write, except that one of the youngsters, who was at this Easter egg hunt and party, was none other than the notorious, dangerous, potential mass murderer, Stanley Johnson. Now, you dear reader will remember that Stanley Johnson is the 10 year old child, who needed three heavily armed, burly, Metropolitan Police Department Officers, with weapons at the ready to arrest him in his classroom in front of his fellow students. Now, you may have gotten the impression from the media coverage of this event that Stanley was indeed, being 10 years old, approximately the size of Bubba Smith, Dick Butkus, and Refrigerator Perry all rolled into one. A large dangerous fire breathing Behemoth, who it took these three officers with their combined puny strength and their ready to be drawn weapons to arrest. Stanley in reality is approximately a 75 to 80 pound, 3'10" to 4'0" tall child. He is 10 years old, and he acts like a 10 year old in a situation where he is placed with other 10 year olds.

He has fun running after and finding Easter eggs where they have been hidden. He has fun playing musical chairs. He has fun running relay races, and he has fun participating in the raffle for toys.

Obviously these are the things and the behavior pattern of a potential mass murderer, because clearly that is what the Metropolitan Police Department had in mind, when they arrested this child to make sure that he would not be a clear and present danger to the rest of Las Vegas. Perhaps, we should thank these two men and one woman, who participated in the arrest of this 10 year old, 80 pound, 4 foot child. I am not a small person, admittedly, but I found myself thinking that if I were coming to get Stanley for any reason, that I could pick up Stanley with one hand and Stanley's two sisters with the other hand and I could take all three of them anywhere that I wanted to take them. I would not think that it would take two other people to help me to take Stanley anywhere, and I would certainly not have to

WHY STUDY US?

These days it seems we are fast becoming statistical friends. Everywhere you turn someone is telling us what the unemployment rate is, how the stock market is doing or who's ahead in the presidential race. To be blunt, I don't care for these kind of statistics. Because in my view they put us down while glorifying others. I'll give you a few examples of what I mean.

- Blacks are turned down for home mortgage loans twice as often as Whites, even when their pay is equal.
- The average net worth of a Black family is $26,130.
- The average net worth of a White family is $111,950.
- Three percent of Black men are self-employed while 7.4 percent of White men are.
- The average SAT score for Black students from low income families is 632.
- The average SAT score of White students from low income families is 881.

Race-based statistics usually disfavor Blacks. But sometimes they get to the core of America's soft underbelly, and an unspoken fear mentally some people have. Note this statistic as reported by noted author Andrew Hacker.

-White residents will stay—and some new ones may move in—if Black arrivals do not exceed 8 percent.

These statistics of course don't uniformly apply to every person of African-American descent. Some of us make more money than Whites of comparable education and experience. But they represent an average of all of us.

I've often wondered why government social scientists constantly bombard us with mindless statistics like these. It doesn't take a rocket scientist to understand the negative dynamics tied to being Black in the U.S.

You would think in a country that touts itself as being a melting pot and embracing different races and ethnicities among its citizens, the government itself would surely not be the source of race-based statistics.

I also find it interesting that Blacks used to be the main focus of anti-discrimination laws. Now that other racial and gender groups are included, discrimination against Blacks is being deemphasized.

Even though the Black claim of being discriminated against has been watered down, they oddly enough continue to do those race-based studies which focus almost exclusively on us. Why? Just pick up your newspaper on any given day. It won't be hard to scan the pages and find another new slant on why we as Black people are "different." Where do you think I got the statistics from that I used in this column?

To know is to grow. Until next week.

NLV...THE WESTSIDE STORY

When There Is Love!

By R.K. Brown

On occasion it seems, the world we live in is full of hate and corruption. It may sound from time to time like I hate white people, and the racist society that they have created. In truth, I am a pretty easy going person.

I am a Christian, so the doctrine of hating any person or group of people is against my basic reasoning. Some might suggest, "but Mr. Brown, when you talk about earthly evils of the American society, you seem to speak with a vengeance and a bitterness!" Well the reality is, when I attack Imperialist American racism, and barbaric white prejudice, I am trying to single out the negative evil influences of the "system" itself!

I speak with a passion and sprite for the truth. Some have suggested that my columns move to influence the black community in a negative way, I would truly hope that isn't the case. A closer examination of any of my columns reveals that, I seldom call the name of a single white aggressor or racist. I use "conservation" to describe a racist viewpoint or ideology. When there is love, then of course short comings of the American social, economic, and political climate.

I know we are all human. There have been many whites who have died, standing up for the basic causes of human and moral righteousness. Abe Lincoln and the Kennedy brothers are good examples. When there is love, abolitionists will set up underground railroads. White northern suburbanites in prestigious collages, become southern freedom fighters, willing to lose their lives for black civil rights. A clean heart can make a white commuter stop by the side of the road, film, and call to attention of America; the senseless beating of a Rodney King. So no I don't hate any man, I feel love for all of God's children in every color under the sun.

But, as has been the case since the inception of America, there are truly primitive, deeply racist factions of the white American public. These demented characters have no need for love or understanding. Unlike liberal whites, these right wing conservatives, view the world of color as the curse of "their" white society. They would like nothing better then for all blacks, Latins, and native Americans to be wiped from the face of the earth!

There are liberal whites who live to love, but unfortunately they very seldom control the political, economic, and social workings of this county. We have had just 3 liberal presidents in the last 40 years! That means for the overwhelming majority of the last half century, the official political ideology of America has been conservative racism!

That entrenched program effects the media, education, morality, and every other aspect of society. So, as long as there are racist factions and viewpoints in this country, I will be there to point them out!
