We Have
$400 Million
That Says
We Believe In Nevada Business.

At Bank of America, we know that many business owners have been facing some tough times lately. In this economy, it's been hard to cover your overhead, let alone grow.

Of course, there isn't anything that $400 million couldn't fix.

So we've put together two loans to put this cash into the hands of business people who can use it. To create new opportunities. New growth. First, is our Commercial Real Estate Loan, ideal for people who are thinking of expanding their office space, buying or refinancing their own building. With this loan, we'll even discount the points and pay half the appraisal fee up to $2,500.

Second is our DirectLine® Equity, which uses the equity in your home to extend a line of credit. It's more flexible, because the money isn't just for real estate. Plus, we've made it even more attractive by waiving all the opening fees, including the appraisal fee.

So stop by a Bank of America branch soon. Because with $400 million to lend, we mean business.

The Knicks won the regular season series 3-1, including a 104-98 victory in Chicago on February 12. Patrick Ewing scored 36 points and grabbed 15 rebounds for New York.

If New York can pull out the victory Friday night, Game 7 will be Sunday afternoon at 4:00 p.m.

SUNS

season series 3-2, winning the last three confrontations: two in Seattle, one in Phoenix.

If the Western Conference Finals head to Game 7, memories of the Suns-Sonics final matchup during the regular season may prevail, when Gary Payton stepped to the forefront scoring 19 points and dishing out 10 assists. Kemp also poured in 19, and snatched 13 rebounds. In an interesting note, Barkley led Phoenix in scoring and rebounds in the first four games, but couldn't be found in the fifth.

Sir Charles better be there in Game Six, or Kid Kemp is takin' over!!!
