'KING': RUN-DMC'S RIGHTEOUS RETURN

By James T. Jones IV, USA-TODAY

After winning raves and besting headliners Naughty By Nature on tour, Run DMC has unleashed the slamming Down with the King (/2) Rap comebacks are almost nil. (Whatever happened to The Fat Boys? The Sugar Hill Gang?) But these 10-year pioneers entered the Billboard chart last month with the No. 7 album (No. 1 R&B), thanks partly to their all-star producer lineup: EPMD, Naughty By Nature's Kay Gee, the Bomb Squad, Pete Rock and Run-DMC's own unflappable dee-jay, Jam Master Jay.

Run-DMC's success can also be credited to its new image: black, sinister attire; shaved heads - and clean lyrics. Yes, they're born again - gangsta Christians, you might say. "If the G-O-D be in me, then a king I'll be," the title tune boasts. And when Can I Get It, Yo, bellows the trio's familiar refrain "Whose house?", they answer "God's house." Most of the album is tough, spitfire bragadocio, pumped by scrumptious, bass-rattling production. Yet they never degenerate into misogyny or murder, showing rap can be hardcore without being offensive. Now that's dope.

FOOT AROUND that ROCKED, ROCKED THE BOAT.
