THE STEELES: MUSICAL FAMILY FUSES GOSPEL-TINGED TUNES WITH R&B AND JAZZ FLAVOR

In a world in which change and individuality frequently face resistance, those who step out, risk-takers with a commitment to quality and excellence, sometimes have to go that extra mile to stand out. Such is the case with the Steeles, justifiably regarded as one of the music industry's best kept secrets.

With the release of Heaven Help Us All, their stunning debut for Elektra Musician Records, the two brother, two sister Minneapolis-based team, the secret's out. Given the opportunity to share their awesome musical gifts, J.D., Jearlyn, Fred and Jevetta Steele rise to the occasion with a milestone album that stands out as one of 1993's truly thrilling recording debuts.

Initially encouraged by their father, J.D. Steele Sr., (considered the family's musical patriarch and mentor), the Steeles could frequently be found on shows in the Midwest with gospel greats like Mahalia Jackson, Reverend James Cleveland and The Staple Singers. "Our father would get us on every gospel show that came to Gary," recalls J.D., "from the time we were just tots! Having a career in music was like a natural evolution for us."

The Steeles moved to Minneapolis in the late 70's. Word of their dynamic harmonies and distinctive individual vocal styles soon led to a slew of commercials and background session dates. In 1982, the group became involved with The Gospel At Colonus, an epic musical that debuted at The Brooklyn Academy of Music in New York and ended with a 12-week run at Broadway's Lunt-Fontanne Theater in 1988.

1989 was a pivotal year for the Steeles. Aside from signing with

Elektra Entertainment, Jevetta Steele was heard on "Calling You," the haunting theme from the movie, Baghdad Cafe. The success of the Island Records' soundtrack resulted in an Academy Award nomination and a gold record in France. Jevetta's soulful rendition was also heard on the 1990 CBS-TV series of the same name that starred Whoopi Goldberg and Maureen Stapleton (See The Steeles, Page 21)
