

NATIONAL ALLIANCE AGAINST RACIST & POLITICAL REPRESSION

taking orders from the beast and making the beast's enemies your own.

In fact, quite the contrary, I have often said that the enemy is my friend, and this is no where truer than in the issue of Geopolitics as practiced by the United States.

More importantly, if we are to motivate our children, we must set an example.

Young people are very quick to pick up on hypocrisy and falsehood. Indeed, if you listen to the ever seemingly popular rap music, they have a very keen sense of hypocrisy.

Especially on the part of the older generation, for after all, it is that older generation that they are watching. So if we are going to motivate them: 1. We must be honest and true to ourselves. 2. We must teach them that their purpose in life is to continue the struggle. 3. We must convince them that the way to continue the struggle most effectively is to become educated.

Again that does not mean accepting without question the supposed wisdom of the master. It means being critical. It means self study.

It means learning more than what you are taught. It means taking a very aggressive posture with the educational system; that is basically there to teach you that 1. You never did anything. 2. You never accomplished anything. 3. You are worthless. 4. You are shiftless. 5. You are lazy. 6. You have no history. It is #6 that is vitally important, because if a people know their history, then they will know how to avoid the same mistakes that they made in the past, and will make in the future.

It is #6 that is the most important in terms of the beast and his making sure that you never understand or hear of your history, History, of course, is not the only realm of education that the beast, too, denies us. Indeed, one of the speakers (who unfortunately was video taped and not live at this weekend's conference) made the point, which I have often made, and that is "That we are the only people who will worship a God, who does not look anything like us." That and the role the church has played in subjugation is one of the great tragedies of the 20th century.

Oh well, so be it. Many of us get lost along the path. Suffice it to say, without education there would be no struggle, for we will not know where, when and how we are to struggle. Without education there can be no advancement, for we will have no idea of where we were, where we are now, or where we need to go.

Without education there can be no competition in a very competitive world, because competition of all types is what makes this planet function. Without education, we will feel that we are a small and insignificant part of the global Eco system, as opposed to the educated knowing that we are the majority of members; the senior stock holders in this global corporate structure.

Without education, we will be kept barefoot, pregnant, ignorant, and on the edge of town,

THE RAY WILLIS REPORT

He engineered passage of an disparity study to aid minority business people in getting contracts with the city and with other local governments in the area.

By conceivable standards, Frank is in fact a key player in Las Vegas city government. He exerts as much influence on key decisions affecting Las Vegas as any councilman. How does he do it? Through the judicious application of his skills and an understanding of the game of politics.

On his part, The Hawk is a positive example for African-American politicians who become frustrated that their efforts are resisted by their fellow white politicians. Frank is the first to admit that his own political career isn't a bed of roses either. "There are times when I get frustrated and almost feel like giving up. When you're used to moving forward positively, you can sometimes take resistance to what you want as a personal insult, especially when you see deals being cut all around you," Hawkins said.

Visit Frank Hawkins Sports Lounge late at night and it's not unusual to see him sitting at the bar or in the corner poring over his city council agenda — preparing himself for the next meeting.

Frank makes no distinction between a gangbanger or the Governor. He respects everyone on a personal level. What more could we ask for in a public servant who knows how to use his power judiciously?

To know is to grow. Until next week.

NEVADA HOMES FOR YOUTH RECEIVES GRANT MONIES

Nevada Homes for Youth received a grant of $159,200 from the Nevada State Department of Commerce Division of Housing to purchase a building to house apartments that will house up to 12 homeless males, between the ages of 17 - 21, and enable them to make a transition to an independent and self-supporting life. It is located near Maryland Parkway and Desert Inn apartments that will house up to 12 homeless males, between the ages of 17 - 21, and enable them to make a transition to an independent and self-supporting life. It is located near Maryland Parkway and Desert Inn

Road. Nevada Homes for Youth currently had two other sites that house homeless girls, according to Executive Director Ronald Moore. In addition, Nevada Homes for Youth conducts Independent Living/Life Skills Classes to enable teenagers to learn how to care for themselves as adults.

Moore said the four-plex to be purchased still requires rehabilitation and Nevada Homes for Youth would welcome donations of materials or services for X effort. Other items needed to house the teenagers include furniture and household supplies.

For more information or to make a donation, contact Nevada Homes for Youth at 256-9200.
