Education, the premier provider of gaming education. Participants will be able to broaden their knowledge base quickly and effectively as they keep pace with the dynamic and rapidly expanding casino industry.

The course will be held Oct. 3-8, beginning Sunday at 6 p.m. through Friday at noon, at the Midby-Bryon Center, 1041 N. Virginia St., on the University campus. The course fee of $2,500 includes instruction, course materials, receptions, refreshment breaks, five nights lodging at the University's Inn, meals, use of university recreational facilities and field trips.

By attending this practical, comprehensive course participants will develop an understanding of processes and procedures necessary to operate a table games department in a casino. Additionally, students will learn how to use and review information provided in tracking and revenue reports for management decision making and marketing strategies. Design and Implementation of security and surveillance operations will be presented to help protect the games and the assets of an organization. The "best demonstrated practices" of casino operations and systems currently utilized in the industry will be presented so that participants will be able to apply these concepts to their operation with considerations for "new" startup operations.

The instructors for the course are Ralph L. Criddle, Dan Reilly, Sal Semola, and Ken Adams. Criddle is a gaming consultant for Ken Adams and Associates and has worked primarily in the area of Native America (Indian) Gaming operations. Reilly is a publisher and an editor of the Nevada Gaming Newsletter and Nevada Gaming Almanac. Semola is director of casino operations for the Silver Eagle Riverboat in East Dubuque, Ill. Adams also publishes and serves as an associate editor of the Nevada Gaming Almanac, Nevada Gaming Directory, and the Adam's Report.

This program is specifically designed for owners, operators, regulators, managers and support personnel responsible for understanding the various operational activities associated with the management of table games and the procedures and processes necessary to provide security and protection to a gaming operation. Those who have limited operational experience in this area of gaming or those new to the industry will also benefit from this course.

To register in the Reno area, contact the University's Division of Continuing Education at 784-4062. For more information, call the division at 784-4046. Outside the Reno area, call toll free at 1-800-233-8928.

TODAY'S SCHOLARS. TOMORROW'S LEADERS.

These students represent the first graduating class of the Thurgood Marshall Scholarship Fund. Dedicated young men and women who earned their scholarships through outstanding academic achievement and commitment to excellence.

The Thurgood Marshall Scholarship Fund was created to help young scholars earn a college degree and fulfill their highest potential. A national merit based program, it is the only one that awards four-year scholarships to students attending historically black public colleges and universities.

The results have been exceptional. These scholars have an outstanding four-year academic average of 3.3 or better. In fact, more than 65% of them plan to go on to graduate school.

The Miller Brewing Company is proud to congratulate these very distinguished graduates. Supporting the best and the brightest students today means supporting the leaders of tomorrow.

Give to the Thurgood Marshall Scholarship Fund.
