members of your household, and your household goods and personal effects to the new location. You may no longer deduct the costs of meals, pre-move house-hunting trips, temporary living expenses, and the costs associated with selling or leasing an old residence or purchasing or leasing a new residence.

In addition, qualified moving expenses are no longer treated as an above-the-line deduction subtracted from gross income in arriving at your adjusted gross income. Therefore, you can still claim a deduction for your moving expenses even if you don't itemize your deductions.

Finally, beginning with the 1994 tax year, reimbursed moving expenses are excluded from an employee's gross income. However, this rule does not include a payment or reimbursement of an expense actually deducted by the individual in the year paid.
