Tickets for the Bally's show are $44 including tax. For reserved seating, call 792-4567.

George Wallace and Tommy Davidson will be performing together at the Sands. Both performers are in the midst of a successful year. Wallace, who appeared in Batman Forever as the mayor of Gotham City, was recently named Best Standup Comedian by the American Comedy Awards. Davidson co-starred in the upcoming sequel to Ace Ventura Pet Detective along with fellow In Living Color alumni, Jim Carrey. Ace Ventura II is scheduled for release late November.

George Wallace, a staple in the comedy circuit, has appeared at such local hot spots as The Comedy Store and Catch a Rising Star. One fact about Wallace that readers might not know was that he got his big break, winning a cable comedy special "The Big Laff Off," while he was writing for The Redd Fox Show.

Television and film have also been important vehicles for Tommy Davidson. Best known for his work on In Living Color, Davidson in 1991 was recognized by Rolling Stone Magazine as one of the "Rising Stars of Comedy." he appeared in Strictly Business along with Halle Berry and John C. Phillips. Look for Davidson to appear in his third one-hour special for Showtime coming out soon.

Tickets for the Sands' show are $23.50 plus tax. Limited V.I.P. is available. Call 733-5453 or (800) 446-4678 ext. 5453 for showtimes or reservations.

John Henton, star of Fox Television's Living Single, will be performing at the Riviera Hotel and Casino along with Def Comedy Jam's Ricky Harris November 3-4. Both of the stars are seasoned veterans on the comedy circuit, but this is the first time they have appeared together in Las Vegas.

Tickets for the Riviera show are $27.50 plus taxes for V.I.P. seating and $22.50 for regular seats.

periodically for status updates. The frequency of your meetings may depend on your strategy. For example, if you use a buy-and hold strategy, you may not need to visit your professional as often as someone who makes trades on a daily basis or weekly basis.

*Don't clam up on each other during market downturns. A financial professional can present investment ideas that you may never have previously considered, and you may offer personal insights that can help your professional make sounder investment suggestions. But when the going gets rough, don't tune out the professional. Nobody can predict exactly what the market will do, but your financial professional has the experience to give you alternative strategies to help your portfolio in good times and bad.

Working closely with your financial professional requires both patience and trust. And the more openly you communicate with your professional, the better opportunities you give yourself for financial success. Talk with your financial professional to see how well you've kept the lines of investing communication open.

deductions or personal exemptions. If you have recently experienced or expect changes in your personal life, such as a marriage or divorce, or the birth of a child, you should also consider changing the amount of taxes that are withheld from your paycheck.

CPAs point out you must be certain that the amount of taxes withheld from your salary plus estimated tax payments equal 90 percent of your 1994 income tax or 100 percent (110 percent for some upper income taxpayers) of the taxes you owned in 1994.

are considered, she said. Also, a number of the schools chosen are located in urban areas and have significant numbers of commuter students.

The regional schools used for comparisons also have many similarities to UNLV, such as program offerings, Coburn said. Additionally, they must be public rather than private. Comparing UNLV to regional schools is useful because of some regional similarities, such as cost of living, she explained.

Of the 11 comparable regional institutions that were compared with UNLV, nine are charging more for undergraduate tuition than UNLV this academic year, while two are charging less. At the upper end of the scale were schools such as the University of California at Irvine, Portland State University in Oregon, and the University of Nebraska at Lincoln, while those schools charging less than UNLV were the University of Idaho and the University of Texas at Arlington. Those coming closest to UNLV in cost were Northern Arizona University and the University of New Mexico at Albuquerque.

Of the 21 national peer institutions compared to UNLV, 19 are charging more than UNLV, while two are charging less. Those at the upper end of the scale were George Mason University in Virginia, Kent State University in Ohio, and Old Dominion University in Virginia. Those charging less than UNLV were the University of Texas at Arlington and Florida International University. Those coming closest to UNLV in cost were the University of Central Florida and Florida International.
