financial assistance in establishing the branch — the first branch to broach racism in the entertainment industry.

For the fifth consecutive year, the awards ceremony will be broadcast on FOX in a two-hour, prime-time telecast. The show will air Thursday, April 6. Diana Ross will host.

Collins and Hughes were surprised at how spiritually rewarding it was meeting conference-goers.

"Sure, there were a lot of celebrities, movers and shakers from the political and corporate arena, but they all seem to be there for one reason — to see a change," she said.

Jordan explained to an author that he wasn't into politics and didn't know the issues. With an eye toward his Nike show contract, he once said: "Republicans buy shoes, too."

Bradley, meanwhile, has won endorsements from many other former top players. In November, he raised $1.5 million at a star-studded Madison Square Garden fund-raiser featuring his former Knicks teammates. Bill Russell, the retired all-star Boston Celtic, also made ads for Bradley that urged voters in Iowa and New Hampshire to get to the polls.

changing. That in the 2000 presidential election Blacks and Latinos will play a bigger role than ever in determining who sits in the White House and Congress. So far the best that the Republicans have done is to agree to shell out a few more dollars on an ad campaign to attract more Latinos.

Keyes got his victory of sorts in Iowa and did passably well in New Hampshire. But as long as Republicans turn a tin ear to those imploring them to come up with an agenda that taps into the conservative mood of many Blacks, Keyes won't strike a key with Black voters.

Earl Ofari Hutchinson is a nationally syndicated columnist and the director of the National Alliance for Positive Action.

"Diversity was the buzz word often used and regardless of how successful they are, they (the participants) knew that racism and unjust treatment effects all of us in the long run. I think that blacks and whites are finally realizing this to be true for the first time."

The Image Awards cemented Hughes' conviction to continue working eight- to 10-hour days for the NAACP.

"I knew, but I now I really know, why I am here and why I will continue to assist and support this branch to the best of my ability," she said.
