

Celebrate National Teacher Day

Everyone's Invited

The American Dream is not a guarantee of success but the opportunity to succeed. That's the promise of America.

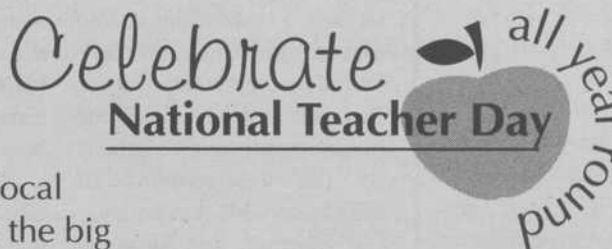

Public school teachers keep that promise, passing on knowledge, skills, values and dreams from one generation to the next. Qualified and committed teachers are a critical part of the foundation for great public schools.

Celebrate National Teacher Day in May. Salute public school teachers for their contributions to the future of America's children. And the future of America.

Great public schools for every child. A basic right. And our responsibility.

Encourage everyone in your community – parents, business leaders, elected officials and neighbors – to celebrate teachers and the work they do. Celebrate. And participate. Start a celebration for teachers in your local public schools. Shower your teachers with well-deserved thanks. Help make every day National Teacher Day.

Visit NEA.org to learn all of the things you can do to celebrate and thank teachers all year long. Call your local public school and volunteer today. You won't believe the big welcome you'll get.

Reg Weaver, President
National Education Association

