Biographical Note

Julius Jensen was born in Hellerup, Denmark in 1898, the eldest son of Julius and Hanne Jensen. After expressing an early interest in natural science, evolution, and genetics, his father encouraged him to study medicine. He attended medical school at the University of Copenhagen and the London Hospital Medical College, graduating in 1923 with a degree and licensure from the Royal College of Surgeons and the Royal College of Physicians of England. From 1923 to 1924, he was junior resident medical officer at the Ministry of Pensions Hospital in Orpington, Kent, England, serving first in cardiology under Sir John Parkinson and later as head of the diabetic service under Dr. H. Woodward. In this position, he was responsible for conducting one of the first clinical trials of insulin, newly licensed as the first effective treatment for diabetes.

In 1924, Jensen immigrated to the United States, working for a year in New Jersey before establishing a private practice in Douglas County, Minnesota. In 1926, he held a teaching fellowship at the University of Minnesota and in 1929 he was granted a Ph.D. in Medicine by reciprocity. Soon after, he moved to St. Louis, Missouri and began teaching clinical medicine at Washington University in St. Louis, a position he held until 1946. In 1938, he became a member of the founders group of the American Board of Internal Medicine and published his first monograph, The Heart in Pregnancy. In 1946, he became Chief of Medical Services at St. Luke's Hospital in St. Louis and professor of graduate education at St. Louis City and County Hospital.

Jensen moved to Las Vegas, Nevada in 1953 and soon established a private practice in cardiology. He accepted a consulting position at Southern Nevada Memorial Hospital, becoming the only Las Vegas physician with the ability to read electrocardiograms, and became a visiting lecturer in cardiology at the University of Southern California (USC). In 1963, Jensen retired from active practice and began teaching at USC full-time. During this period he collaborated with Dr. David Blankenhorn on several investigative studies on familial hypercholesterolemia and heart disease.

Julius Jensen retired from teaching and research in 1972 and returned to Las Vegas, where he died in 1982.

Scope and Contents Note

The Julius Jensen Professional Papers (1630-1979) consist of medical research notes, medical journal reprints, manuscript and article drafts, professional and personal correspondence, business and financial records, investment information, travel information, photographic prints, art prints, and collectible books and magazine.

Jensen's medical research notes include information gathered for an unpublished manuscript Familial Hypercholesterolemia: Genetic and Clinical Aspects as well as a draft of the manuscript and case histories, research notes, and analyses created during the 1923 insulin trials at the Ministry of Pensions Hospital, Orpington, England. Correspondence includes letters to and from members of Jensen's family in Denmark, particularly his brothers, the writer Arne Hall Jensen and the artist Helge Hall Jensen, his early mentor Sir John Parkinson, and various personal and business associates. Much of the correspondence is written in Danish. Also included are four seventeenth-century intaglio art prints.
