Biographical Note

Businessman and developer Wilbur Clark was born in Keyesport, Illinois on December 27, 1908 to Shirley and Lulu Clark. He moved to San Diego, California as a teenager, working a series of jobs before relocating to Reno, Nevada. While working in casinos and investing in other businesses in Reno, Clark kept his eye on business opportunities in Las Vegas, Nevada.

Wilbur Clark married Toni Gaglianese in 1944. That same year, he purchased the El Rancho Vegas on the Las Vegas Strip and also invested in the Monte Carlo Club on Fremont Street in Las Vegas. He sold his interest in the two properties in 1946 and used the proceeds to begin building a new resort on the Strip, the Desert Inn. Due to rising post-war construction costs the project ran low on funds, and Wilbur Clark sold a majority interest in the Desert Inn to Moe Dalitz in order to finish construction. Wilbur Clark's Desert Inn opened on April 24, 1950, adding an eighteen-hole golf course a year later. He was a partner in the Desert Inn until he sold his interest in 1964.

In addition to the Desert Inn, Wilbur Clark built the Paradise Gardens housing development in Las Vegas, naming the streets after himself and his family. He also served as mayor of the township of Paradise Valley, Nevada. Wilbur Clark died of a heart attack on August 27, 1965.
